Proposal No. 1: Approval of the Proposed Appropriation of Retained Earnings for the 99th Fiscal Year

The proposed appropriation of retained earnings is as described in Report for the Shareholders (p.31).

The Company attaches great importance to business management that focuses on return on shareholders' equity (ROE). The Company intends to maintain an average ROE of 10 to 15% on a consolidated basis (U.S. GAAP) over the medium- to long-term in order to increase shareholders' equity. Accordingly, with respect to the distribution of dividends, the Company determines the dividend amount by taking into account the target level of ROE as well as the stability of the distribution of dividends while maintaining sufficient amount of shareholders' equity in order to swiftly and securely capture the expanding opportunities for the Company's business.

As for the dividend for this fiscal year, based on the above belief, the Company proposes ¥15.00 per share.

The reversal of reserve fund for specified fixed assets is in accordance with the Special Taxation Measures Law.

Proposal No.3: Issuance of Stock Acquisition Rights as Stock Options

1) Reason for Issuing Stock Acquisition Rights on Terms Especially Favorable to Persons Other than Shareholders

The Company is planning to issue without consideration the following two types of stock acquisition rights as stock options for the purpose of enhancing the incentives of the directors, executive officers and employees of the Company and its subsidiaries to improve their performances and of acquiring talented human resources.

The first is the stock acquisition rights with the condition that the amount to be paid upon exercise of stock acquisition rights at the time of issuance shall be determined based on the market price (Stock Option A Plan).

Edgar Filing: NOMURA HOLDINGS INC - Form 6-K

The second is stock acquisition rights with the condition that the amount to be paid upon exercise of stock acquisition rights at the time of issuance shall be below the market price (one (1) yen per share) (Stock Option B Plan). The Stock Option B Plan will enable the Company to control cash payment for compensation through granting stock acquisition rights as a partial substitute for cash compensation. Furthermore, the Stock Option B Plan will enable the Company to make quasi-deferred payments of compensation by setting out the period during which the stock acquisition rights cannot be exercised (non-exercise period). Accordingly, the Stock Option B Plan will have the same economical effect as the Company granting stocks with restriction of transfer. In principle, the non-exercise period will be not shorter than two (2) years.

Table of Contents

2) Summary of the Issuance of Stock Acquisition Rights under Stock Option A Plan

(1) Type / Number of Shares Under Stock Acquisition Rights

Up to 2,500,000 shares of common stock of the Company.

In the event that the shares are split or consolidated, the number of shares for the unexercised stock acquisition rights at the time of the stock-split or stock-consolidation shall be adjusted in accordance with the following formula. Any fractions less than one (1) share shall be disregarded.

$$\text{Adjusted Number of Shares} = \frac{\text{Number of Shares Before Adjustment}}{\text{Ratio of Split or Consolidation}} \times$$

In the event that new shares are issued or the shares are disposed of at a price below the market price (excluding the exercise of stock acquisition rights and the exercise of stock subscription rights), the number of shares for the unexercised stock acquisition rights at the time of the issuance of new shares or disposition of shares shall be adjusted in accordance with the following formula. Any fractions less than one (1) share shall be disregarded.

(Note) Explanation of the Committee System

Under the Committee System, a company shall maintain three committees, a nomination committee, an audit committee and a compensation committee, in each of which a majority shall be outside directors, and also have executive officers to execute business activities. (The company shall establish an audit committee and so the board of statutory auditors shall be abolished under the Committee System.) Directors shall supervise management through performing their functions including those of three committees and executive officers shall execute business activities under many of the authorities delegated by the board of directors. In addition to the separation between business execution and management oversight, three committees shall have powers concerning determination of board candidates, audits and determination of compensation of directors and executive officers and, as a result, management oversight by directors will be strengthened.

The adoption of the Committee System has two merits; (1) quicker management decisions by executive officers and (2) stronger governance through activities of the three committees.

Table of Contents

Due to the above merits, the Company will adopt the Committee System with the following three purposes.

(1) To Increase Management Transparency

The Company and its domestic and overseas subsidiaries (the Nomura Group) adopted a holding company structure on October 1, 2001 and have taken a series of measures to ensure transparency of management practices. The current management structure of the Company comprises ten directors including two outside directors and four statutory auditors including two outside statutory auditors. They have a number of management supervisory functions. In addition, the Company established an Executive Compensation Committee to discuss compensation for the directors of the Nomura Group. The Committee members are one representative director and two outside directors. Furthermore, the Company was listed on the New York Stock Exchange in December 2001 with enhanced information disclosure.

The adoption of the Committee System conforms to the management reorganization set out above. Under the new corporate governance structure, the Company will establish three committees: a Nomination Committee, an Audit Committee and a Compensation Committee, each of which will have a majority of outside directors, aimed at strengthening management oversight and further improving transparency.

(2) To Create More Flexible Group Operations

The Nomura Group pursues integrated business operations under a unified strategy. Under the Committee System, management oversight functions will be separated from business operation functions and many of the powers to execute business activities will be delegated to executive officers. As a result of the new structure, the Company will be able to make quicker management decisions on a consolidated basis.

Table of Contents

In addition, the Company's directors will serve as outside directors of many of the subsidiaries to ensure strong and effective oversight of the management of the subsidiaries.

(3) To Enhance the Effectiveness of Internal Control Systems

Following the adoption of the Committee System, the Company will establish more effective internal control systems by reorganizing audit functions of the statutory auditors and internal audit functions. In addition to audits through internal control system provided by the Audit Committee, directors well informed of the business and organization of the Company will supervise or inspect the execution of the business in order to supplement audit functions by the Audit Committee.

With the approval at the General Meeting of Shareholders, following the adoption of the Committee System, the directors of the Company and the nominees of members of the Nomination Committee, the Audit Committee and the Compensation Committee and the nominees of executive officers will be follows. In accordance with the adoption of the Committee System, all of the statutory auditors shall retire from office.

Letter to Shareholders:

My name is Nobuyuki Koga and I was installed as President and Chief Executive Officer on April 1, 2003.

I am pleased to report the consolidated results of operations for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2003.

We have faced a reasonably tough business environment this year brought about by serious deflation, prolonged non-performing loans problems as well as a strained global environment. Under accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America (U.S.GAAP), Nomura Holdings, Inc. s consolidated net revenue (after the deduction of interest expense) was 566.3 billion yen, consolidated income before income taxes was 47.4 billion yen, and consolidated net income was 119.9 billion yen. As such, Nomura s return on equity (ROE) amounted to 7.4%. In view of our performance, we will be offering a per-share dividend of 15 yen.

Though the business climate remains harsh, from a governmental policy aspect, important movements towards Japanese economic revival can be seen, such as the announcement late last year of the policy program aimed at promoting concurrently both the disposal of non-performing loans and revitalization of industry. Furthermore, in the corporate sector, management reforms directed at increasing shareholder value have been gathering rapid momentum as evidenced by fundamental restructuring, progress in unwinding cross shareholdings and increased levels of share buybacks and M&A activities. In the household sector, though preference for risk-free assets has strengthened generally, it is becoming increasing clear that individual investors are beginning to shift their assets into higher risk products while ascertaining risk-return profiles. This is apparent from the significant increase of investment in foreign currency denominated bonds, for example.

Under such circumstances, we seek to achieve our goal, which is to establish our status firmly as a globally competitive Japanese financial institution while contributing to the revitalization of Japanese corporations and the nation s economy by providing our customers with various solutions and investment opportunities through the capital markets.

As always, we look forward to the continuing support of shareholders.

Table of Contents

The fiscal year ended March 1999 (from April 1, 1998 to March 31, 1999)

During the fiscal year ended March 1999, there was great instability in global capital markets, as evidenced by turmoil in the Asian markets and widening credit spreads triggered by the Russian financial crisis. The stock market remained bearish for most of the fiscal year ended March 1999, but the alleviation of concern over the Japanese financial system as a result of capital injections of public funds into Japanese banks and other factors brought up stock prices toward the end of the fiscal year. In the bond market, interest rates of government bonds continued to stay at historically low levels and the spreads between government and corporate bonds widened as investors were sensitive to credit and liquidity risk. Under such circumstances, the Company endeavored to offer products that fit customers' needs, and its ordinary income for the fiscal year ended March 1999 was 45.0 billion yen. Also during this year, the Company determined that it would be in its best interest to provide financial assistance to Nomura Finance Co., Ltd. (NFC) in the amount of 348.0 billion yen, which was accounted for as a special loss in order for NFC to undergo a fundamental restructuring and to resolve its non-performing loan problem. As a result, the Company posted a net loss of 241.8 billion yen for the fiscal year ended March 1999.

The fiscal year ended March 2000 (from April 1, 1999 to March 31, 2000)

During the fiscal year ended March 2000, the international capital markets were basically stable due in large part to the continued economic growth of the United States and recovering Asian economies. In Japan, the stock market rose steadily throughout the fiscal year ended March 2000 as expectations of a recovery from the country's recession relieved investors' anxieties. The government's pursuit of a zero interest rate policy and other government programs intended to stimulate the economy has generated increased confidence in the country's fiscal outlook. Since the summer of 1999, the performance of Japan's stock market has closely correlated with the market activities in the United States, primarily because of the rise in the value of technology related stocks. The market has shown a clear tendency to be polarized into two groups, technology shares and non-technology shares. In contrast, the bond market in Japan became temporarily sluggish due to supply and demand imbalance concerns. Generally, bond prices moved within a box range because of government policies to control long-term interest rates, such as maintaining a near zero interest rate environment and diversifying the maturities of government bonds. Under such circumstances, the Company endeavored to offer high quality advice, information and services and posted ordinary income of 303.3 billion yen.

The fiscal year ended March 2001 (from April 1,2000 to March 31, 2001)

During the fiscal year ended March 2001, there was a modest recovery in the Japanese economy from the beginning of the fiscal year to the autumn of 2000 triggered by expanded capital investment, however, further stagnation occurred afterwards, reflecting slowdowns in the U.S. and Asian economies, as well as a slowdown in IT-related demands and investment. Japan's stock markets continued their sluggish performance since the beginning of the fiscal year, however, the Nikkei Stock Average rallied slightly toward the end of March 2001, as prospects improved for Japan's fundamental restructuring to solve its bad loan problems. The bond markets declined temporarily caused by the lifting of the zero-interest rate policy in August 2000, but recovered steadily afterwards. From February to March 2001, due to the reduction of the official discount rate to 0.25%, the bond futures market rallied and achieved an all-time high. Regarding trading activities, the Company built an organization which provided the most efficient order execution services in the country. The Company's customer-based business was unified on a global basis, and the unification led to higher order matching opportunities, especially with orders from overseas customers. As a result of the foregoing, the Company's ordinary income amounted to 244.1 billion yen.

The fiscal year ended March 2002 (from April 1,2001 to March 31, 2002)

On October, 1 2001, the corporate separation date, the Company implemented corporate separation and the operation of the securities and other related businesses was succeeded by Nomura Securities Co., Ltd., the Company's wholly-owned subsidiary and the Company became a holding company. (1) Summary

During the fiscal year ended March 2003, the Japanese economy started with a recovery from stagnation supported by recovered U.S. business activity and good performance by Asian economies. However, the recovery power of domestic demand was weak. The Japanese economy remained in a landing after summer and waffled there until the year ended March 31, 2003. Although the stock market went up on expectations of an economic recovery at the beginning, it changed to a downtrend. There was a spate of negative factors, such as corporate accounting scandals in the U.S. in the summer, a deep public uncertainty from the bad loan problems of Japanese banks after the beginning of autumn, growing tensions in Iraq after the turn of the year, increase in the unwinding of cross shareholdings and concerns about aggravation of supply-and-demand from the return of the company paid portion of the employees pension fund. In this regard, major stock indices generally plunged to a new 20-year low at the end of the fiscal year ended March 31, 2003. On the other hand, there was continuous funding shifts from stock investments to bond investments and bond markets steadily rose through the fiscal year ended March 31, 2003. Yields on newly issued 10-year-government bonds remained below 1% on and after the end of the year 2002 and temporarily hit 0.6% in March, 2003.

As a result of the foregoing, Nomura Holdings, Inc. and its consolidated subsidiaries (Nomura) reported net revenue of ¥566.3 billion and non-interest expenses of ¥ 518.9 billion for the year ended March 31, 2003. Income before income taxes and net income were ¥ 47.4 billion and ¥ 119.9 billion, respectively, for the year ended March 31, 2003.

Total assets were approximately ¥ 21.2 trillion and total shareholders' equity was approximately ¥ 1.6 trillion at March 31, 2003. Nomura's return on equity was 7.4% for the year ended March 31, 2003.

The accounts of the investee companies (PFG entities) of the Principal Finance Group were included in the consolidated financial statements through March 27, 2002, the date such entities were contributed to a limited partnership in exchange for a limited partnership. PFG entities accounted for ¥ 459.1 billion of net revenues and ¥ 484.4 billion of non-interest related expenses for the year ended March 31, 2002.
