Swanepoel pointed to the advent of Nepad, the African Union and the on-going presence the Commonwealth and other multi-lateral cooperative bodies have in Africa. The singular and invaluable experiences President Chissano has had will be of great value for Harmony as we navigate a new cooperative period in Africa's history.

Chissano said when the African Union was established: We must be able to discover opportunities where yesterday we saw nothing but threats and risks. We should be ready to discover partners where yesterday we saw enemies. To do this, we have to redesign the whole conceptual architecture so that we can see further ahead and in a different way. We must create a new vision and we must have the necessary courage to turn that vision into reality.
