Manager Commentary

June 30, 2015 (Unaudited)

To Our Shareholders:

The first half of 2015 has been a transition period for the leveraged finance market. Loans and bonds have both outperformed their rather unimpressive results of 2014, when loans (1.60%) and high yield bonds (2.45%) significantly underperformed 10-year U.S. Treasuries (10.72%). During the period, global energy prices continued to weigh on the market, particularly on high yield bonds. Cold and snowy winter weather plagued the eastern half of the U.S., and a strike slowed the flow of goods in and out of Long Beach California's gateway port. Doubts about a Fed lift-off in interest rates, or if one would ever come, spurred individual investors to continue to sell bank loan funds as such funds experienced outflows of $6.4 billion during the first half of the year.¹ Turmoil in the Euro-zone over Greece (the Grexit), the possibility of a Puerto Rican default, and questions over the direction of the China equity market all conspired to add volatility to the markets. June was particularly volatile as the VIX, a popular proxy for market volatility, spiked over 34% and rose from 14.0 to 18.9 in just one particular day. Bank loans proved relatively sheltered from the volatility as they were the top performer (2.83%) compared to other asset classes, as detailed below. Within the bank loan market, higher quality assets outperformed their riskier counterparts as loans rated BB returned 3.29% year to date while CCC-rated loans returned 2.69%. With the average dollar price for U.S. loans falling over the last two months, the percentage of U.S. loans trading at or above par was at 27% by the end of June.

As we approach a Fed lift-off, we expect the loan asset class may garner significant attention from investors looking to hedge their fixed-income portfolios from duration risk. The U.S. market has already seen signs of this as mutual fund flows stabilized in 2015 after outflows totaled $24 billion in 2014.¹ A rate hike in the U.S. could lead to inflows in loan mutual funds. That said, institutional investors have continued to invest in CLOs and CLO creation combined with generally flat retail flows helped support the secondary market resulting in an average price increase of $0.76, or 0.79%, since the end of 2014, according to the S&P/LSTA U.S. Performing Loans Index. U.S. CLO issuance continued at a healthy pace, bringing year-to-date volume to $61 billion, excluding refinancing transactions. Strategists forecast CLO issuance of $80 - $100 billion in 2015.¹

U.S. bank loan new issuance reached $229.0 billion by the end of the first half of 2015, down 30% relative to last year's $327.8 billion first-half tally. Volume was heavily weighted in the second quarter as robust demand spurred an increase in re-pricing activity. Given the decrease in net new issuance, supply has lagged demand in the loan market and we expect that trend to continue as the market adapts to new regulations governing leveraged lending guidelines. Net demand outpaced net high yield supply despite a reversal in retail fund outflows. After high yield funds' $9.1 billion of net inflows during Q1 2015, fund flows turned negative (-$5.0 billion) during Q2 2015 amidst broader market volatility and concerns about duration risk. We expect high yield retail funds to continue to see volatility ahead of the Fed's lift-off, which is expected by many to occur later this year. On the supply side, gross new issuance continued at a similar pace quarter-over-quarter but net new issuance decreased as call activity increased. Year to date, 51% of the new issue volume has been used for refinancing transactions, down from 60% over the same period last year, followed by 31% of new issue volume used for acquisition finance/LBO transactions.²

Default rates continue to remain below historical averages (3-4%) as the last twelve month bank loan and high yield bond default rates ended the first half of 2015 at 1.74% and 1.88%, respectively. Companies in the energy and coal sectors have continued to struggle; nine energy companies and three coal companies defaulted so far in 2015, accounting for 35% and 30% of year to date default volume, respectively. Strategists continue to be constructive on near-term credit risk and forecast loan and bond default rates of 1.5% for both 2015 and 2016, excluding energy. Including the energy sector, 2016 default rates may be closer to 2.0% for loans and 3.0% for high yield. Thirteen issuers, with aggregated loan and bond issues totaling $8.2 billion, defaulted during the second quarter.¹

As headlines from Greece, China, and Puerto Rico recede for the medium-term, our attention turns to the Federal Reserve and monetary policy. We expect the Fed to hike rates once this year, and believe that a hike in September is more likely than in December. Economists expect growth to rebound from the first quarter's contraction and we believe the Fed is anxious to reload its policy quiver. After seven years of zero interest rate policy (ZIRP), we expect some rate-related volatility across the markets. Short-term Treasury rates indicate that the market is pricing in a dovish path for rates and that creates risk that some investors could be caught offside when rates finally rise. We believe high yield will be more susceptible to rate hikes than leveraged loans because of bonds' interest rate duration and as a result currently favor floating rate, first-lien and second-lien loans over fixed-rated bonds.

Manager Commentary

June 30, 2015 (Unaudited)

We are also watching knock-on effects from tighter monetary policy in the U.S. For example, a stronger dollar has weighed on a number of commodities that are already struggling with oversupply. Year to date through July 22, oil and copper are down over 14% while gold has fallen 7.6%. As a result, we have generally maintained a low weighting to commodity-exposed credits. Relative to leveraged loans, high yield bonds are more vulnerable to commodities, especially oil, as energy comprises 16% of the high yield market versus 4.7% for bank loans.³

Finally, the Funds recently announced a change in portfolio managers. Effective upon the retirement of the Funds current lead portfolio manager, Lee Shaiman, on or before September 30, 2015, the Funds will be managed by Robert Zable who will serve as the lead portfolio manager of the Funds. Gordon McKemie has served as a portfolio manager of the Funds since the second quarter of 2015 and remains a portfolio manager of the Funds.

At GSO /Blackstone, we value your continued investment and confidence in us and in our family of funds. Additional information about our funds is available on our website at www.blackstone-gso.com.

Sincerely,

GSO / Blackstone Debt Funds Management LLC

Blackstone / GSO Senior Floating Rate Term Fund

Fund Summary

June 30, 2015 (Unaudited)

Fund Overview

Blackstone /GSO Senior Floating Rate Term Fund (BSL or herein, the Fund) is a closed-end fund that trades on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol BSL . BSL 's primary investment objective is to seek high current income, with a secondary objective to seek preservation of capital, consistent with its primary goal of high current income. Under normal market conditions, the Fund invests at least 80% of its total assets in senior, secured floating rate loans (Senior Loans). BSL may also invest in second-lien loans and high yield bonds and employs financial leverage, which may increase risk to the Fund.

Portfolio Management Commentary*Fund Performance*

BSL outperformed its key benchmark, the S&P LLI, on a Net Asset Value (NAV) per share basis for the periods of three months, six months, one year, three years, five years, and the life of the Fund since inception. The share price of BSL outperformed its benchmark for the periods of three months, six months, and one year, though it underperformed over the three year, five year, and the life of the Fund since inception periods due to market value fluctuations. The shares of the Fund traded at an average discount to NAV of -6.5% for the last six months ending June 30, compared to its peer group average discount of -7.9% over the same time.¹

NAV Performance Factors²

The Fund 's over-allocation to diversified utilities (7.6% versus the benchmark of 5.3%), insurance (3.8% versus 1.9%), and health care providers (9.0% versus 8.8%) were the top contributors to performance throughout the first half of 2015. Conversely, the Fund 's over-allocation to commercial services & supplies (12.2% versus 8.2%) and under-allocation to specialty retail (5.5% versus the benchmark of 8.7%) and diversified financial services (1.1% versus 3.2%) weakened investment performance for the six-month period. Oil and gas, which comprised 5.7% of the portfolio versus a benchmark weighting of 4.1%, was the second best performing industry for the Fund, driven primarily by strong credit selection within the space, as well as commodity price tailwinds over the first half of the year. Notable contributors to performance, by issuer, included the Fund 's full underweight to Millennium Laboratories (term loans of which fell roughly 52% in the first half of the year) and Energy Future Holdings (TXU), as well as an overweight to Sensus and CrownRock Finance. Key detractors to investment performance, by issuer, included Smile Brands, Nine West, and Crossmark Holdings.

Portfolio Activity and Positioning

Over the past six months, BSL reduced its exposure to retail and healthcare and pharmaceuticals, and increased its exposure to energy, oil and gas and banking, finance, insurance, and real estate companies. The Fund maintained a minimal cash balance throughout the period and increased its allocation into second lien loans, selectively increasing its Caa-rated assets. BSL continued to recover some of the portfolio loan spread lost last year, increasing the average loan spread 49 basis points and its average high yield bond coupon 41 bps from the end of 2014.

As of June 30, 2015, the Fund held over 93% of its Managed Assets in bank loans and around 5% in high yield bonds. BSL's investments represented the obligations of 175 companies diversified across 27 distinct industries, with an average position size representing 0.50% of Managed Assets and the top five industry groups representing 42% of total holdings of the Fund. High Tech Industries, Services-Business, and Healthcare and Pharmaceuticals represent the Fund's top industry weightings.
