companies Tagilo Participações Ltda., Sudestecel Participações Ltda. and Avista Participações Ltda., whereby the merged companies were extinguished. We further inform that Vivo Brasil Comunicações Ltda., 100% of which was previously owned by Brasilcel N.V., was also merged into Portelcom.

At this same date, Brasilcel N.V. increased the capital stock of Portelcom by transferring 1,910,428 common shares of Vivo Part to Portelcom. Additionally, we make it clear that the ultimate shareholding control was not changed and that the reorganization does not involve Vivo Part, but rather only the controlling group companies holding shares in Vivo Part.

Whereas on last Friday, 11/13/2009, Telemig Celular Participações S.A. (“TCP”) was merged into Vivo Part, with consequent extinguishment of TCP, the chart below shows the new Shareholding Structure of Vivo Part after the above mentioned corporate events:

The above referred changes allowed the corporate structure of the group companies to be simplified.
