- (c) Were the distributions made pro rata based on share ownership?

The Fund distributed full shares of The Gabelli Equity Trust Inc. ("Gabelli") common stock (plus cash in lieu of fractional shares) to Fund shareholders who did not exercise their dissenters' rights (the "Transaction"). For each share of Sterling Capital Corporation held by a Sterling shareholder, such shareholder received the equivalent of .7914 newly issued shares of Gabelli common stock. A single shareholder dissented to the Transaction, and according to the New York Business Corporation Law, the dissenter received fair value for his 27 shares in the form of $200.45 in cash. This amount represents a 1.4% premium to the net asset value and a 4.5% premium to the closing market price of the Sterling shares on September 12, 2005, and is the same price paid to other Sterling shareholders in connection with the Transaction.

If Yes, describe briefly the plans (if any) for distributing to, or preserving the interests of, those shareholders:

In connection with the Transaction and subsequent liquidation of Sterling, the board of directors of Sterling created a liquidating trust and transferred $250,000 in cash to the liquidating trust. The purpose of the liquidating trust is to pay Sterling's known and contingent liabilities as of the date of Sterling's liquidation. Beneficial interests in the liquidating trust were distributed to Sterling's shareholders on a pro rata basis on September 13, 2005. Accordingly, Sterling technically has distributed all of its assets to shareholders. However, the liquidating trust continues to hold approximately $250,000 in cash. This amount is held in cash in a bank account at Citibank. The Trustees of the liquidating trust are all of the independent trustees of Sterling plus Donald J. Pugliese, a Delaware citizen who serves as special Delaware Trustee as required by the Delaware Statutory Trust Act. Although the trustees of the liquidating trust have discretion to cause the liquidating trust to retain its cash and use that cash to satisfy Sterling's liabilities for as long as necessary, they have indicated that they intend to distribute any remaining cash to Sterling's former shareholders from six months to one year after Sterling's liquidation.
