January 24, 2012

Dear Colleagues:

A few moments ago, we issued a press release acknowledging that Roche has said publicly it intends to commence an unsolicited tender offer to acquire us. Our press release is attached.

We did not solicit this offer, but our Board of Directors has a responsibility to our stockholders to evaluate it and make a formal recommendation that the Board believes is in the best interests of Illumina stockholders. Our Board has engaged Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Bank of America Merrill Lynch as financial advisors and Dewey & LeBoeuf LLP as legal advisor to assist in the review, and will make a recommendation to stockholders in due course. A tender offer is a public offer to the stockholders of a company asking those stockholders to sell their stock to the party making the offer. A tender offer must comply with the rules and regulations of the SEC, which are quite technical. It is important to note that Roche will not be able to actually purchase any shares tendered until numerous conditions are satisfied. As you will see from our press release, we have advised our stockholders not to take any action pending the Board's recommendation.

We realize that this news has the potential to be distracting. Until the Board makes its recommendation, however, we will be constrained in what we can say and simply cannot speculate on the outcome.

You should be proud that Illumina has firmly established itself as the innovation and market leader in tools for genetic analysis, with a proven track record of profitability and outperformance. We are singularly positioned in a nascent industry which promises to grow exponentially in the years ahead as the needs and applications for genetic information broaden in line with changing paradigms of biological research, medical diagnostics and healthcare.

You have all done a wonderful job helping to build this great Company and you are a vital part of its future. I encourage you to remain focused on our business and our customers.

If you receive any media or other outside inquiries regarding this situation, please direct them to the contacts listed on the press release. If you have specific questions, please feel free to contact me, Christian or Mark Stapley.

Thank you for your continued dedication and hard work.

Best regards,

Jay Flatley

Chief Executive Officer
