Xerox Reinforces Significant Benefits of Its Proposed Combination with Fuji Xerox

NORWALK, Conn., Mar. 7, 2018 The Board of Directors (the Board) of Xerox Corporation (Xerox) (NYSE: XRX) today issued the following letter to Xerox shareholders, reinforcing its belief in the significant benefits of the Company's proposed combination with Fuji Xerox:

Dear Xerox Shareholders,

On January 31, 2018, Xerox announced its plans to combine with Fuji Xerox the joint venture Xerox and Fujifilm established in Asia 56 years ago to create a global leader in innovative print technologies and intelligent work solutions.

As a result of a comprehensive review of the Company's strategic and financial alternatives, Xerox's Board and management strongly believe that the combination with Fuji Xerox is the best path forward to create value for Xerox and its shareholders:

The combination creates significant immediate and long-term value for Xerox shareholders;

Xerox shareholders will be owners of a larger, stronger and more valuable company with enhanced prospects for growth and value creation;

Xerox and Fujifilm are already closely aligned, and both have demonstrated track records of success in transformation;

The agreement establishes strong governance and ownership safeguards for current Xerox shareholders; and

The existing Fuji Xerox joint venture has been integral to Xerox's competitiveness for many years, and the combination will optimize the benefits of this partnership for our Company.

The Transaction Creates Significant Immediate and Long-Term Value for Xerox Shareholders

The Transaction provides Xerox shareholders with significant value both at closing, which is expected to occur in the second half of 2018, and over time. This includes a substantial cash dividend that will be paid to Xerox shareholders contingent upon consummation of the Transaction, as well as the upside of a significant investment in a larger, stronger and more competitive company.

Value Delivered to Xerox Shareholders at Closing

$2.5 Billion Special Dividend

(~$9.80 per share¹)

*Significant, certain value representing ~33%
of Xerox's current market capitalization*

49.9% Ownership Stake in the Combined Company

Larger, stronger and more competitive company with a more attractive financial profile

Our partner in the Fuji Xerox joint venture, Fujifilm, will own the other 50.1 percent of the combined company. Fujifilm will also consolidate the same share of the debt associated with the special dividend paid to Xerox shareholders at closing, but will not receive any portion of this payment.

The relative ownership of the combined company is favorable to current Xerox shareholders and implies an over 15 percent premium relative to Xerox's unaffected stock price of $30.35, which was prior to media reports about a potential transaction on January 10, 2018².

In addition, Xerox and Fujifilm teams have already identified $1.25 billion in annual cost savings opportunities from combining the two companies, demonstrating the highly synergistic attributes of this Transaction.

As shown in the chart below, this compelling shareholder value equation represents an illustrative total value of approximately $45 per share for the combined company.

Total Illustrative Value Creation for Xerox Shareholders

Importantly, this does not reflect the value creation or multiple expansion opportunity over time that we believe should result from the combined company's enhanced revenue profile, global reach, scale and competitiveness.

Shareholders Will Be Owners of a Larger, Stronger and More Valuable Company

The Transaction will create an industry leader with $18 billion in revenue that is better positioned to compete and capture growth opportunities in the marketplace by leveraging the global reach, scale, technology and innovation strengths of the two companies. With direct access to high-growth markets in Asia Pacific, Xerox will operate as a truly global platform for the first time in its history.

Beyond the $1.25 billion in cost synergies described above, we believe the combined company will have an improved revenue profile based on significantly strengthened manufacturing, distribution, innovation and R&D strategies, as well as improved cost competitiveness across global markets. This is expected to result in an at least $1.0 billion revenue expansion opportunity for the combined company. We believe the improved revenue trajectory will increase the valuation of the combined company, while enabling the vast majority of the cost savings to flow to the bottom line.

Specifically, the revenue and cost synergies identified through this combination include:

Developing a more complete and competitive product portfolio with enhanced offerings in areas where Xerox is currently underpenetrated, such as high-speed inkjet and low-end A3;

Streamlining global R&D, product rollout and marketing strategies to deliver best-in-class solutions with greater coordination, efficiency and improved time-to-market;

Leveraging Xerox and Fuji Xerox's integrated delivery and servicing capabilities to improve our solutions architecture and expand client relationships globally;

Transforming small and mid-sized business (SMB) strategy by expanding our channel reach and increasing cost competitiveness through synergies;

Creating an integrated global manufacturing, distribution and R&D platform by applying best-in-class practices; and Optimizing the global footprint of manufacturing, distribution and R&D centers, and eliminating duplicative costs at corporate and support functions.

In addition to the $1.25 billion of cost synergies related to these actions, there is a separate cost reduction program already underway at the existing Fuji Xerox joint venture, which is expected to deliver $450 million in annual cost savings over the next two years. This brings the total annual cost savings target for the combined company to over $1.7 billion to be completed by 2022, with approximately $1.2 billion achievable by 2020:

$1.7 Billion in Total Annual Cost Savings by 2022

By capitalizing on these opportunities, the combined company is expected to return to revenue growth by 2020, faster than Xerox could achieve on its own, and deliver industry-leading operating margins in the high teens by 2022.

As a result, the combined company's operating leverage is projected to drive free cash flow in excess of $2.0 billion. This will enable us to support investments in innovation, strategic growth initiatives and attractive capital returns over time.

As both Fujifilm and Xerox have previously communicated, the combined company will maintain a commitment to return at least 50 percent of free cash flow to shareholders in line with Xerox's current capital return policy. This future capital return policy is in addition to the $2.5 billion special dividend that will be paid to Xerox shareholders at closing.

While Xerox has been successfully executing its strategy to improve its revenue trajectory and expand margins, we believe the future value potential of the combined company, driven by the substantial revenue and cost synergy opportunities, exceeds what would be achieved as a standalone company.

The synergies from bringing together two highly complementary businesses will be a leap forward on our path to become the industry leader and enhance shareholder value.

The proxy statement we will file in due course will include additional disclosures regarding the financial profile of the combined company, which we believe will reinforce the compelling value of this Transaction.

Xerox and Fujifilm Are Already Closely Aligned, and Both Have Demonstrated Track Records of Success in Transformation

Our longstanding relationships with Fujifilm and Fuji Xerox provide this combination with greater execution certainty than most M&A transactions. The companies have a long history of working together and know each other well. The combined company will have an experienced leadership team, led by Xerox's CEO Jeff Jacobson, entirely committed to realizing the full value potential of the new company.

As evidenced by the proven track record of decisive actions at both Xerox and Fujifilm, the combined company will also build on a strong legacy of significant recent transformations at both companies:

Xerox's Transformation

Successfully completed the separation of Conduent in January 2017, unlocking significant shareholder value.

Delivered on all of its commitments for FY 17 to drive revenue and margin improvements:

Exceeded its aggressive cost reduction target as part of its three-year Strategic Transformation program in its second year by $80 million, reaching $680 million gross cost savings in FY 17;

Increased penetration in strategic growth areas representing 40% of total revenue versus 36% in FY 15;

Executed the successful launch of 29 new workplace devices, representing the Company's largest new product launch in its history;

Signed 65 new dealer partners to enable channel expansion in the small and midsized business (SMB) market; and

Took a series of steps to optimize its capital structure including reduction of $800 million of debt and

Fujifilm's Transformation

Survived the digitalization of the photographic industry through a dramatic business transformation while many of its peers struggled.

Successfully diversified its portfolio to faster-growing markets, such as document solutions, imaging, healthcare and functional materials (86% of revenue in FY 16 vs. 46% in FY 01).

Implemented major restructuring actions between fiscal years 2007-2011, significantly improving the Company's operational performance and returning the Company to steady profit generation.

Delivered on its commitment to enhance capital returns to shareholders, including dividend increases for 8 consecutive years.

Drove total shareholder return of approximately 200% in the last 5 years compared to 138% for the Tokyo Price Index during the same period⁵.

Maintained a strong investment grade credit rating, while supporting shareholder returns and significant M&A investments.

$836 million pension contributions as well as simplification of operations through elimination of accounts receivable sales programs.

Implemented a series of actions to enhance its governance structure and increase transparency, including:

Increasing the Board's independent director ratio;

Strengthening management with leadership changes and consolidating reporting lines; and Integrating Fuji Xerox's accounting and audit functions with those of Fujifilm.

The Transaction Agreement Establishes Strong Governance and Ownership Safeguards for Current Xerox Shareholders

Strong governance protections for current Xerox shareholders have been built into this Transaction, including:

5 independent Xerox designated directors that will serve or select their replacements for 5 years; after 5 years, those 5 board seats may only be replaced by other independent directors, if reasonably acceptable to the then-serving independent directors;

An independent Audit Committee as required by the NYSE standards;

An independent Conflicts Committee, the majority of which will comprise Xerox designated directors for 5 years; the Committee will oversee any proposed transactions including those with Fujifilm to ensure the terms are fair to the combined company and no less favorable than arm's length terms; and

Other provisions limiting the ability of Fujifilm to engage in interested party transactions and to obtain disparate consideration in connection with a future sale.

Existing Fuji Xerox Joint Venture Has Been Integral to Xerox's Competitiveness, and the Combination Will Optimize the Benefits to Xerox

For 56 years, Fujifilm and Xerox have jointly owned and operated the Fuji Xerox joint venture. This partnership is among the most successful cross-border collaborations between the U.S. and Japan, and has existed in its current form (25% owned by Xerox, 75% owned by Fujifilm) since 2001. Xerox has significantly benefited from this relationship over the years.

Today, Xerox sources more than two-thirds of its equipment products from Fuji Xerox, including the vast majority of the office equipment sold to enterprise customers. Fuji Xerox designs and manufactures this equipment using the shared IP that the two companies have developed together over the decades.

It is important to note that Xerox, in its sole discretion, determines the volume of business it conducts with Fuji Xerox and is not subject to any minimum purchase obligations under the existing supply agreement. In fact, Xerox at times solicits other proposals to determine which supplier best meets the Company's requirements in terms of cost, quality and pricing. Based on this ongoing sourcing analysis, we believe it is highly unlikely that Xerox would be able to achieve attractive pricing and terms with alternative suppliers.

Xerox benefits from Fuji Xerox's superior technology, design and manufacturing expertise, as well as attractive pricing. As a result, our supply relationship with Fuji Xerox has grown and been sustained at mutually-beneficial economics over time.

Xerox's strategy for bringing innovative, high-quality products to the market in partnership with Fuji Xerox and other suppliers has clearly been successful, as evidenced by our #1 equipment revenue market share and industry-leading margins.

The proposed Transaction will also solve for suboptimal aspects of the current joint venture structure by enabling Xerox to:

Reach revenue growth sooner with access to faster-growing regions;

Optimize its cost structure through enhanced control over its supply chain; and

Simplify its financial profile and operations through full consolidation of Fuji Xerox's income and cash flow. Combining Xerox with Fuji Xerox builds upon this strong partnership to create a global platform with enhanced scale, competitive positioning and financial flexibility. The combination presents tangible, achievable opportunities for value creation both in the near and long term.

We will provide more information about our partnership with Fujifilm and the Fuji Xerox joint venture in further communications with our shareholders.

The Combination Is the Best Path Forward for Xerox

Xerox's Board of Directors, in consultation with world-class financial and legal advisors, explored all strategic and financial options reasonably available to improve the Company's growth trajectory, better compete in a challenging industry environment, and ultimately create shareholder value. This included options for its standalone business, capital allocation strategy and the current Fuji Xerox joint venture construct, as well as other potential strategic transactions.

Upon thorough evaluation over many months, the Board concluded that the proposed combination with Fuji Xerox is superior to other alternatives and in the best interest of all Xerox shareholders because:

Xerox shareholders are realizing value based on relative valuation, immediate and certain value provided by the special dividend, and significant upside from an ongoing interest in the combined company;

The Transaction creates a stronger, larger and more competitive company with an accelerated path to revenue growth and shareholder value creation;

Substantial cost savings opportunities are unlocked that will drive margin expansion and fund future investments; and

Shareholders rights and interests are protected in the new company through strong governance measures.

Xerox's Board of Directors is focused on creating long-term value for the Company and its shareholders. Our Board members are confident in the many benefits of the combination and the bright future Xerox will have as a result.

Thank you for your continued support and investment in Xerox.

Fuji Xerox is a joint venture between Xerox Corporation and Fujifilm in which Xerox holds a noncontrolling 25% equity interest and Fujifilm holds the remaining equity interest. In April 2017, Fujifilm formed an independent investigation committee (IIC) to primarily conduct a review of the appropriateness of the accounting practices at Fuji Xerox's New Zealand subsidiary and at other subsidiaries. The IIC completed its review during the second quarter 2017 and identified aggregate adjustments to Fuji Xerox's financial statements of approximately JPY 40 billion (approximately $360 million) primarily related to misstatements at Fuji Xerox's New Zealand and Australian subsidiaries. We determined that our share of the total adjustments identified as part of the investigation was approximately $90 million and impacted our fiscal years 2009 through 2017. We concluded that we should revise our previously issued annual and interim consolidated financial statements for 2014, 2015 and 2016 and the first quarter of 2017 the next time they are filed. Our review of this matter has been completed. However, Fujifilm and Fuji Xerox continue to review Fujifilm's oversight and governance of Fuji Xerox as well as Fuji Xerox's oversight and governance over its businesses in light of the findings of the IIC. At this time, we can provide no assurances relative to the outcome of any potential governmental investigations or any consequences thereof that may happen as a result of this matter.
